Coronary bypass surgery is undoubtedly a very significant achievement of modern medical science. But one ponders over certain pertinent questions such as the cost involved and the ultimate benefit.

The human heart is nothing but a four chambered muscular pump which supplies Blood to all parts of the body. Being an active pump, the heart itself requires a lot of energy and receives its own blood supply via certain vessels called coronary arteries. By a process called atherosclerosis fat particles are deposited on the inner wall of the lumen of the coronary arteries which eventually reduce the size of the lumen and produce obstruction to the free flow of blood. The portion of the heart which suffers from lack of blood supply becomes weaker as a pump and gives rise to a typical chest pain called 'angina'. When such blockage is total, the corresponding heart muscle dies and then one suffers a "heart attack". In all these circumstances, heart surgeons perform a special type of operation known as coronary bypass surgery.

In this surgery a blood vessel is taken (usually from the leg of the patient) and then grafted on the heart in such a way that when blood flows through, it bypasses the narrow segment of the diseased coronary artery. The concept is to divert the flow from the narrow artery, inside which there is already 'traffic congestion' and in this respect it is synonymous to road bypass.

While Delia did this, Jim too was planning to buy an attractive gift for his dear wife. But unfortunately he too was short money. He decided to sell his pocket watch & buy nice clips for Delia's long hair. As soon as he was stuck with that idea, he rushed to the market. He sold his watch & bought attractive clips for Delia's long hair. Both of them kept this as a secret.

Read the following extract and answer the following questions given below.

The animal organized a school. They adopted an activity curriculum of running, climbing, swimming and flying. To make it easier to administer the curriculum all the animals took all the subjects.

The duck was excellent in swimming. In fact, better than his instructor. But he made only passing grade in flying and was very poor in running. Since he was slow in running, he had to stay after school and also drop swimming in order to practice running. This was kept up until his webbed feet were badly worn and he was only average in swimming. But 'average' was acceptable in school, so nobody was worried about that, except the duck.

Rabbit started at the top of the class in running, but had nervous breakdown because of so much make up work in swimming.

The squirrel was excellent in climbing until he developed frustration in flying class where his teacher made him start from the ground up instead of the tree top down. He also developed a "Charlie horse" from overexertion and then got a 'C' in climbing and 'D' in running.

The eagle was a problem child and was disciplined severely. In climbing class, he beat all others to the top of the tree, but instead on using his own way to get there.

At the end of the year, an abnormal eel that could not swim exceedingly well and also run, climb and fly a little had the highest average and was valedictorian.
